

Frozen Edible Flowers

I have been growing violas since last year, they are very easy to grow and fun to use in the kitchen. They have a pleasant pea flavor and are great to use for decorating desserts or toss into a green salad.

I started with seeds...it was very easy and I was very happy when I noticed the little leaves coming from the soil... after a while there were so many flowers...more than I asked for, and I felt bad just tossing them out. So I froze the little flowers in the ice cube tray. Once the flowers were frozen, I removed from the tray and stored in an airtight contained in the freezer for future use. This ice cubes can be used when serving juice, cocktails or simply ice water. You cannot imagine smiles when serving drinks with these little flowers in the ice cube...a simple idea that can generate big smiles.

I hope you enjoy this simple idea of frozen edible flowers.

Thank you for stopping by Color Your Recipes...have a colorful day!